

Press Release

iF design gold award for the Spaceline EX treatment unit

Awarded for the perfect interaction of function, quality, comfort and esthetics

Kyoto, Japan. The J. MORITA MFG. CORP. is extremely pleased to receive the prestigious iF gold award 2018 for the Spaceline EX treatment unit. It is already the third product from the J. MORITA MFG. CORP. portfolio to receive this honor for outstanding and excellent design.

The Spaceline series is based on the ergonomic treatment concept developed over 50 years ago by its pioneer Dr. Daryl Beach. Dentists treat patients in a healthy, ergonomic posture thus facilitating the entire workflow. The treatment site, dentist's element, instruments and all further aids are always easily accessible. The ergonomic design of the controls and instruments provides for fatigue-free working in different treatment situations. The Spaceline EX offers a number of technological innovations. The intelligent, sophisticated user interface with digital graphics displays all important information to operators by linking with the flexibly connectable devices. By arranging the surrounding facilities, Morita support staff can access the Spaceline EX remotely for service purpose. This is the realization of the internet-of-things concept in the dental office.

“Perfect for patients and practitioners, the highly precise Spaceline EX dental workspace shines with user-friendly ergonomics and an excellent build quality. The clear white surface finish underscores the design elegantly,” so the Gold statement of the iF Design Jury.

The high quality combined with the white surface instills confidence in Japanese engineering expertise. The esthetics match the Veraview X800 X-ray system and the Soaric treatment unit, which also received the iF design gold award.

Many years of development experience and the positive feedback to the ergonomic treatment concept are integrated into the new treatment unit which is part of the new Morita design line. Users receive a coherent overall package for convenient, quick handling. The Morita team is very grateful for this award which rewards many years of work to provide for greater quality of life.

The Spaceline EX treatment unit is only available in the Japanese market.